No interest in waste meetings

by Susan Grober

What if they held a public meeting, and nobody came?

That's a question Snowdon Reeve George Simmons would like answered after last Saturday's public information seminar on the county's Waste Management Master Plan.

Especially since a series of six public meetings are budgeted at a total cost of $31,000.

During Monday's Snowdon council meeting, Simmons expressed concern that only about 30 members of the public turned out for the meeting, which was held at the Haliburton Legion.

The consulting firm which is working on the study over a three-year period has scheduled six public meetings in its budget, with each meeting costing the public over $5,000.

There are also five public workshops scheduled — last Saturday's meeting was the first — and the consultants are charging for their presence at these meetings as well.

Two people from the consulting firm A.J. Robinson and Associates, Paul Frigon and Jennifer Voss, charged $650 and $350 respectively for attending the workshop.

Simmons is concerned that if the turnout last Saturday is any indication, there won't be many people interested in providing input when the rest of the meetings are held.

"People are worried about high taxes, yet they don't put their voices in," said Simmons.

The consultants are stressing the importance of attaining public input before sites are chosen for landfills in the county, said Simmons.

If the public doesn't get involved during these early stages, Simmons predicted "a big hullabaloo" once the site, or sites, is finally named.

"The public doesn't come out until the sites are named," said Simmons. "If we

Push comes to shove

Eager to get on with the game, members of The Times Men's Recreational Hockey League team push the arena's resurfacing machine off the ice. The unit lost power just as it started to clear the ice between the first and second games last week. With the help of Mel Floodm, arena staffer Wally Mysyk discovered the problem was a loose wire. The machine was back in top form by the end of the next period.

MPP free after two nights in jail

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Dennis Drainville has paid his debt to society.

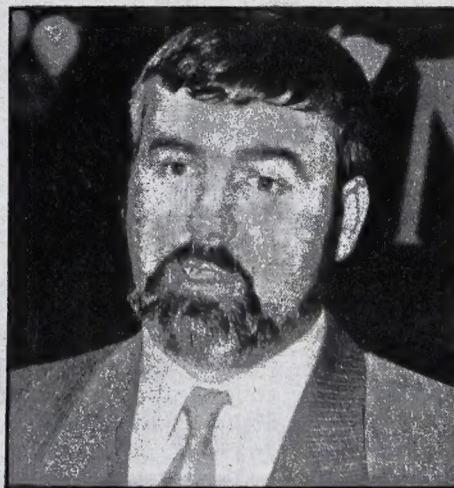

Victoria-Haliburton's MPP was released from the North Bay District Jail on Friday morning after spending only two nights behind bars.

In February, Drainville was sentenced to one week in jail and fined $750 after being found guilty of mischief for his participation in a Temagami protest.

At the time, Drainville announced he would appeal the sentence and said he would refuse to pay the fine opting instead to spend an additional four weeks in jail.

By refusing to pay the fine, Drainville said he would be showing solidarity with the natives who were also arrested during the protest, many of whom could not afford the penalty.

But last week, Drainville back-tracked on both counts by deciding to drop the appeal, serve the one week sentence, and pay the $750 fine to avoid the additional jail time.

Dennis Drainville

"Many people have spoken to me on the matter, and they express the view that going to jail for one week will maintain the principles that I so firmly believe in," Drainville is quoted as saying in a Queen's Park news release. "Those principles are the rights to Canada's Native Peoples and concern for the protection and preservation of the environment."

Drainville was arrested in December, 1989 when he joined 227 native and non-native protesters in blocking construction of a logging road through the Temagami wilderness in support of native land claims in the area.

The press release says Drainville's decision to drop the appeal was made in consultation with legal counsel, and with the agreement of native leaders in Temagami.

"I would like to thank the many constituents who supported me throughout my stand and I am responding to their concerns surrounding the extra 30 days I would have to spend in jail if I did not pay the fine," he said. "It was clear that I can better help Victoria-Haliburton and the native community if I pay the fine."

Drainville reported to the North Bay jail on Wednesday evening, and although he was sentenced to a week, he was released on Friday morning after spending only one full day in the facility.

Education in Canada fails says German immigrant

This week's submission is by Dr. Peter Schleifenbaum, manager of the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve owned by his family. Dr. Schleifenbaum immigrated to Haliburton County from Germany.

by Dr. Peter Schleifenbaum

I emigrated with my family from Germany to Canada, specifically to Haliburton, in the spring of 1988. My third anniversary of being a "landed immigrant" coincides with my writing of the following address to the Spicer commission.

In my present decision making process of applying for Canadian citizenship, four criteria which I believe will drastically influence my life and that of my children in Canada in the future, stand out as landmarks. Those are: government affairs, Canadian culture/racial relations, education and budgeting and taxation.

I would like to comment in brief on each of those four subjects from the perspective of an immigrant who has previously experienced different systems of European society.

Government Affairs: I interpret the existence of the Spicer Commission as an insult to the present democratic system. To my understanding of democracy it is the mandate of politicians to make decisions to the best of their abilities. If these abilities depend on the report of Commissions then they are unable to serve their mandate and should hand over their powers to these commissions directly. This refers to Federal (Spicer), provincial (health care study) as well as local (Haliburton County - market value taxation study) governments.

To bring it to a point: commissions and studies are used extensively as fig leaves for overdue political decisions, leaving the citizens with an eroded democratic system as well as exorbitant bills to pay.

Canadian Culture/Racial Relations: As immigrant, I am appalled at the vehemence with which provincial and federal authorities press citizens with foreign backgrounds to preserve racial and national uniqueness and diversity. Canada does have a culture to preserve and the image of a turbaned Mountie as well as a daggered teacher will be to the detriment of the understanding of "Canadian" internally as well as externally. The time bomb that is being planted by stressing and financially supporting differences between distinct sections of the Canadian society instead of integrating them, needs instant defusion. The respect for minority rights (and everybody is part of a minority) can not, to the detriment of the whole, mutate into total submission of the majority. Tolerance is a two way street.

Education: An education which leaves one quarter of the population "functionally illiterate" must be marked 'F' (failed). In a global context Japan and Germany serve as prime examples for superior economic power not through an abundance of natural resources, but an abundance of skilled labour. I believe that this can only be achieved in Canada by introducing two major changes to the present educational system: 1) trying to promote the elite, not the average; 2) make education in general--and quality, post secondary education in particular--accessible to everybody. Abandon the concept of tuition fees in favour of free education limited only by intellectual, not monetary abilities.

Without the ability to add sufficient value to the abundant natural resources, Canada will degrade back into a society of hewers of wood and drawers of water that provide foreign countries such as Germany with the cheap raw material for high value products. It is not high Canadians wages that destroy Canadian jobs in the wake of Free Trade. It is the inability to support a generally high wage level with the skill and technology to produce merchandise competitive on the world market. The quality of education is the base for those required skills and technologies.

Budgeting & Taxation: The extent to which the Canadian economic and social system relies on government regulation and interference in form of grants and subsidies is frightening. The ability to hand out grants clearly classifies ministries and other government agencies. Those that administer large funds for hand outs on an annual basis are important, those that don't aren't. Efficiency and mandate have become secondary in significance to subsidy budgets. At the same time the government sector grows and grows. Bureaucrats are required to administer increasing services; increased services require funding; increased funds require tax hikes; new taxes have to be administered; increased administration has to be supervised. In this process services start overlapping, services are being administered unfairly and funds are being wasted.

In order to hide their own budget restraints levels of government become very creative in passing the buck. The last one to pay is the taxpayer--and he pays dearly. Every fifty cents spent by a government agency have cost the taxpayer one dollar. Every square foot of living space provided through government funds has cost the taxpayer twice the amount a comparable square foot of housing would have cost private enterprise to construct.

I am not advocating free enterprise where public interests are at stake. But the expansion of the government sector is limited by reason. This reasonable limit has long been surpassed.

I would like to see privatization where free enterprise is more competitive. I would like to see a concentration of government services, based on the ability to pay without taking the incentive to produce and create. The triplication of services/impediments by federal, provincial and local governments has to be channelled.

The last few years have seen politicians all over the world accomplish tasks of grandeur to the benefit not only of their peoples, but to the world community. I wish I could see politicians in this country leading and deciding for a great and distinct society, from sea to sea. Canada, a truly magnificent country, deserves better than what it presently gets.

Lack of interest a concern

Public meetings costly

have to run more meetings after, then to me that's the public's fault."

In the consultant's budget, the first public meeting costs $5,800. The next four would cost $5,025 each, and the last would cost $5,210, for a total of $31,110.

Carol Puffer, chairman of the county's Steering Committee, says the consultants have budgeted any additional public meetings at a cost of $5,000 each.

"In my opinion, the public meeting aspect leaves a loop for budget overages," she told The Times on Friday. "If there isn't a cap on how many public meetings are required, it could be a real money-maker for the consultants."

Puffer says the information presented by the consultants during the public meetings could be handled by members of the Public Liaison Committee, which is made up of local volunteers, as well as the Steering Committee, which is comprised of all reeves.

"Such educational information gathering, I feel, would be best done by ourselves," she said. "We could translate it to the public."

As committee chairman and warden of the county, Puffer plans to write the consultants, asking for a review of this aspect of the proposal.

In its proposal, the consulting firm has also budgeted for 16 meetings with the Steering Committee, at a total cost of $48,000, and five meetings with the Public Liaison Committee, at a $6,500 total.

So all of the scheduled meetings, a total of $85,500, would end up being about a third of the consulting firm's estimated $230,000 cost to draw up the plan.

Puffer says an alternative method of information gathering should be reviewed. "I'm not sure if public meetings are the way to go."

The Public Liaison Committee is now struggling to find a way of spreading the word.

Flyers and pamphlets have been considered, but committee members want to avoid contributing to the garbage crisis by distributing what may be considered by some to be "junk mail."

In the meantime, Puffer would like to see more people come to the meetings. "It would always be very nice to see people who are eager," she says.

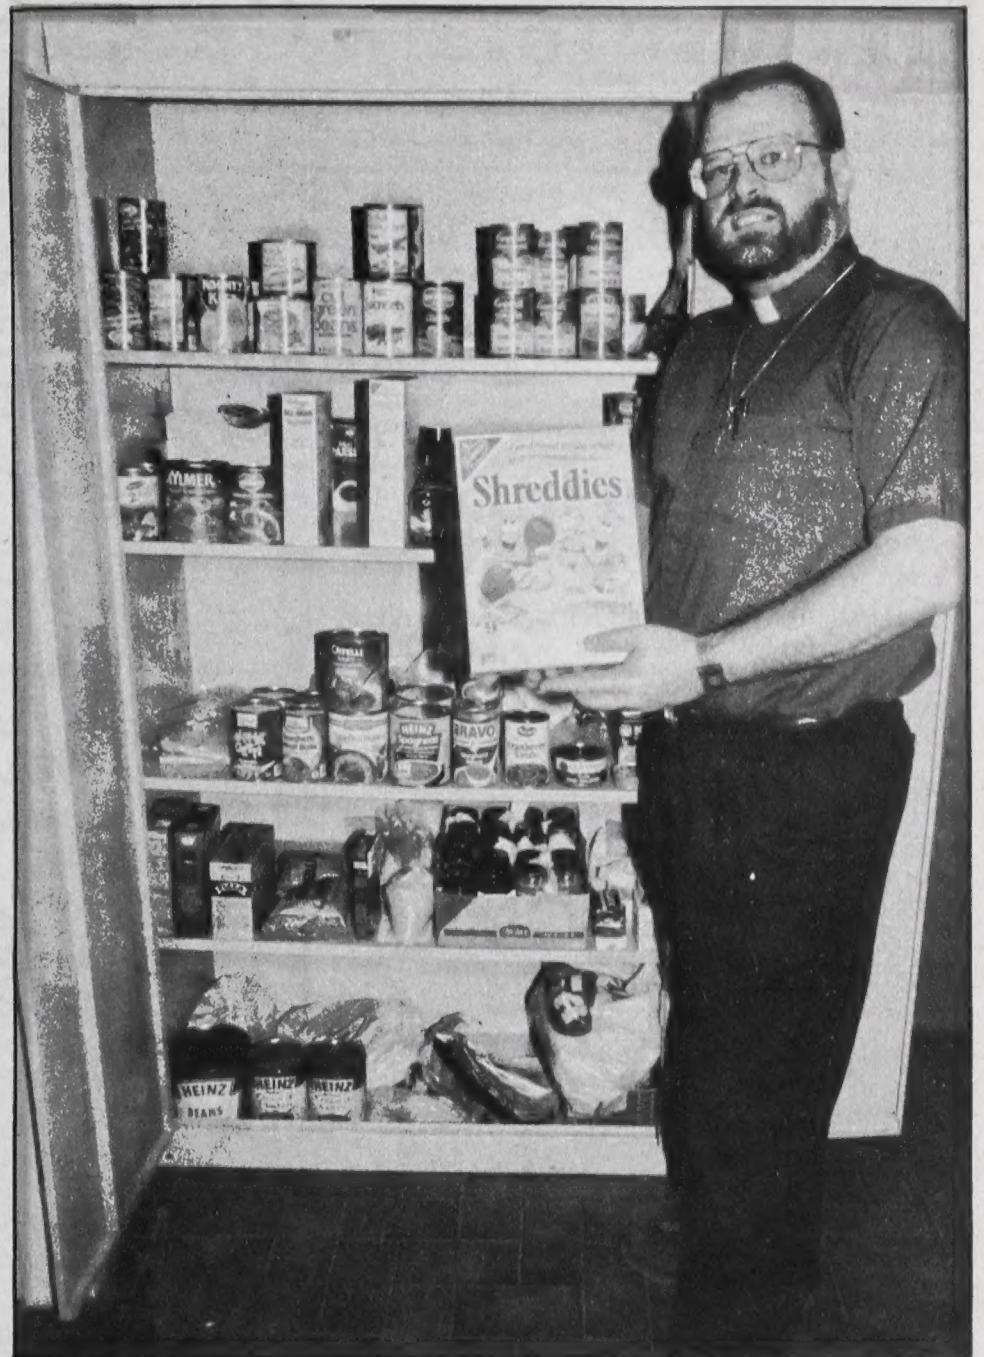

At the meeting, there was some concern that the terms used to explain the process of the study were too complex for the average person to understand. "We're going to work very hard toward changing that," said Puffer.

She expects it will be easier for people to get involved once the terms are translated from engineer's jargon to "Haliburton English."

Meanwhile, Puffer hopes more members of the public will be willing to get involved in deciding how waste should be managed, and where landfills should be situated.

"It might eliminate a lot of chaos and misunderstanding when people coming in, not having the background, will be faced with a reality of choice," she said.

"It's the same old not-in-my-backyard syndrome. Then it will end up at the OMB (Ontario Municipal Board), and costing a lot of money."

Rev. Brian Parker is hoping a food drive this week sponsored by the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) will help to fill up the shelves of the Minden Food Cupboard, at St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Union sponsoring food drive to help local needy people

When the cupboard is bare, you need a place to turn. Particularly during this current time of recession.

This week the Minden community is being urged to help those in need as the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) is sponsoring a food drive during the week of March 18 to 22.

"It is imperative that we assist these community members through the crisis and alleviate their hunger without stripping them of their dignity," says Gwen Hewitt, President CUPE Local 2787, Minden Hospital.

"Foodbanks offer assistance to families in need," she says. "Forty percent of all food provided by foodbanks is consumed by children. Three nutritious, well-balanced meals each and every day are essential to the optimal physical/mental growth and development of a child. No one should have to go hungry, and certainly not a child."

Non-perishable items can be dropped off at the legion, Dollo's IGA, Valu-mart, and CHACE Place.

And loonie bins will be provided for donations at the legion, Minden Hospital, CHACE Place, Sunny Convenience, and Dollo's IGA. The money will be used to buy milk, baby formula, baby food, and other perishable items.

All food and cash donations will be delivered to the Minden Food Cupboard, operated out of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Rev. Brian Parker says St. Paul's has operated its food bank on a small-scale since last October, with food being collected in a cupboard donated by the church women's group.

The shelves of the cupboard are lined with boxes of macaroni and cereal, packages of Kraft Dinner, and cans of soups, sauces, beans and vegetables. Still, there's always room for more.

But Rev. Parker stresses the words of Bishop Terrence Finlay, who feels foodbanks are only a Band-Aid solution to a problem to which the government must give more attention.

In the meantime, locals are being urged to share during this food drive.

"Food for thought: Poverty, hardship and hunger are words used by the media to describe conditions of human suffering throughout the world," says Hewitt. "We need to look no further than our own community to see men, women and children suffering these same deprivations due to unemployment, inflation and other devastating effects of the recession."

New MNR rules for shoreline purchase

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Ministry of Natural Resources is taking a new interest in the sale of municipally owned shoreline road allowances to adjacent property owners.

In a letter to municipalities, the ministry says it has revised its criteria for reviewing shoreline closures to include consideration of fish and wildlife habitat.

"The ministry recognizes that for municipalities which have been active in closing up and selling shoreline road allowances, this will represent a change from the current approach," the letter says.

Many municipalities, including Anson, Hindon and Minden, require property owners to purchase the shoreline allowance before undertaking any construction or alterations along the water.

Under the new ministry policy, municipalities will be encouraged to retain municipal road allowances which:

- *are necessary to provide access to water,

- *consist of lands below the normal high water mark,

- *are adjacent to sensitive fish and wildlife habitat, including lake trout lakes, spawning areas, nursing areas and wetlands.

If a residence or cottage has been built upon the shoreline road allowance, the ministry will not object to sale of the allowance occupied by the building.

Municipalities are being encouraged by the ministry to develop official plan policies and zoning by-law provisions to protect fish and wildlife habitat. If a municipality can demonstrate it has sufficient protection, the ministry may not object to the sale of road allowance above the high water mark.

Currently, landowners have to get a permit from the ministry to perform any improvements or construction along the shoreline. Dave McLeish, a biologist with the ministry's Minden office, says work permits for shoreline improvements will still be considered, even if the allowance is retained by the municipality.

"We're not saying no work can be carried out," he said. "It's just another measure to protect wildlife habitat."

McLeish said the reason for the ministry's request that shoreline allowances not be sold is to maintain a larger buffer zone around the lake environment.

The ministry is in the process of collecting information about critical wildlife and fish habitat for area lakes, and will review shoreline closure requests on the basis of available data.

If there is no habitat mapping for a particular lake, McLeish said the ministry will tend not to object to the sale of shoreline allowances.

The ministry is suggesting that municipalities identify possible concerns before starting the shoreline closure procedure to avoid unnecessary survey and legal costs.

All road closing by-law with surveys dated after April 1, 1991 will be reviewed on the basis of the new concerns. Road closings dated prior to April 1, 1991 will be reviewed on the basis of the former rules.

Editorial

All too often the rallying cry of taxpayers has been, "Why weren't we consulted? Aren't they interested in what 'the people' want?" And yet, it appears when given an opportunity to have an impact on an issue vital to the county's future, interest melts like butter on a summer's day.

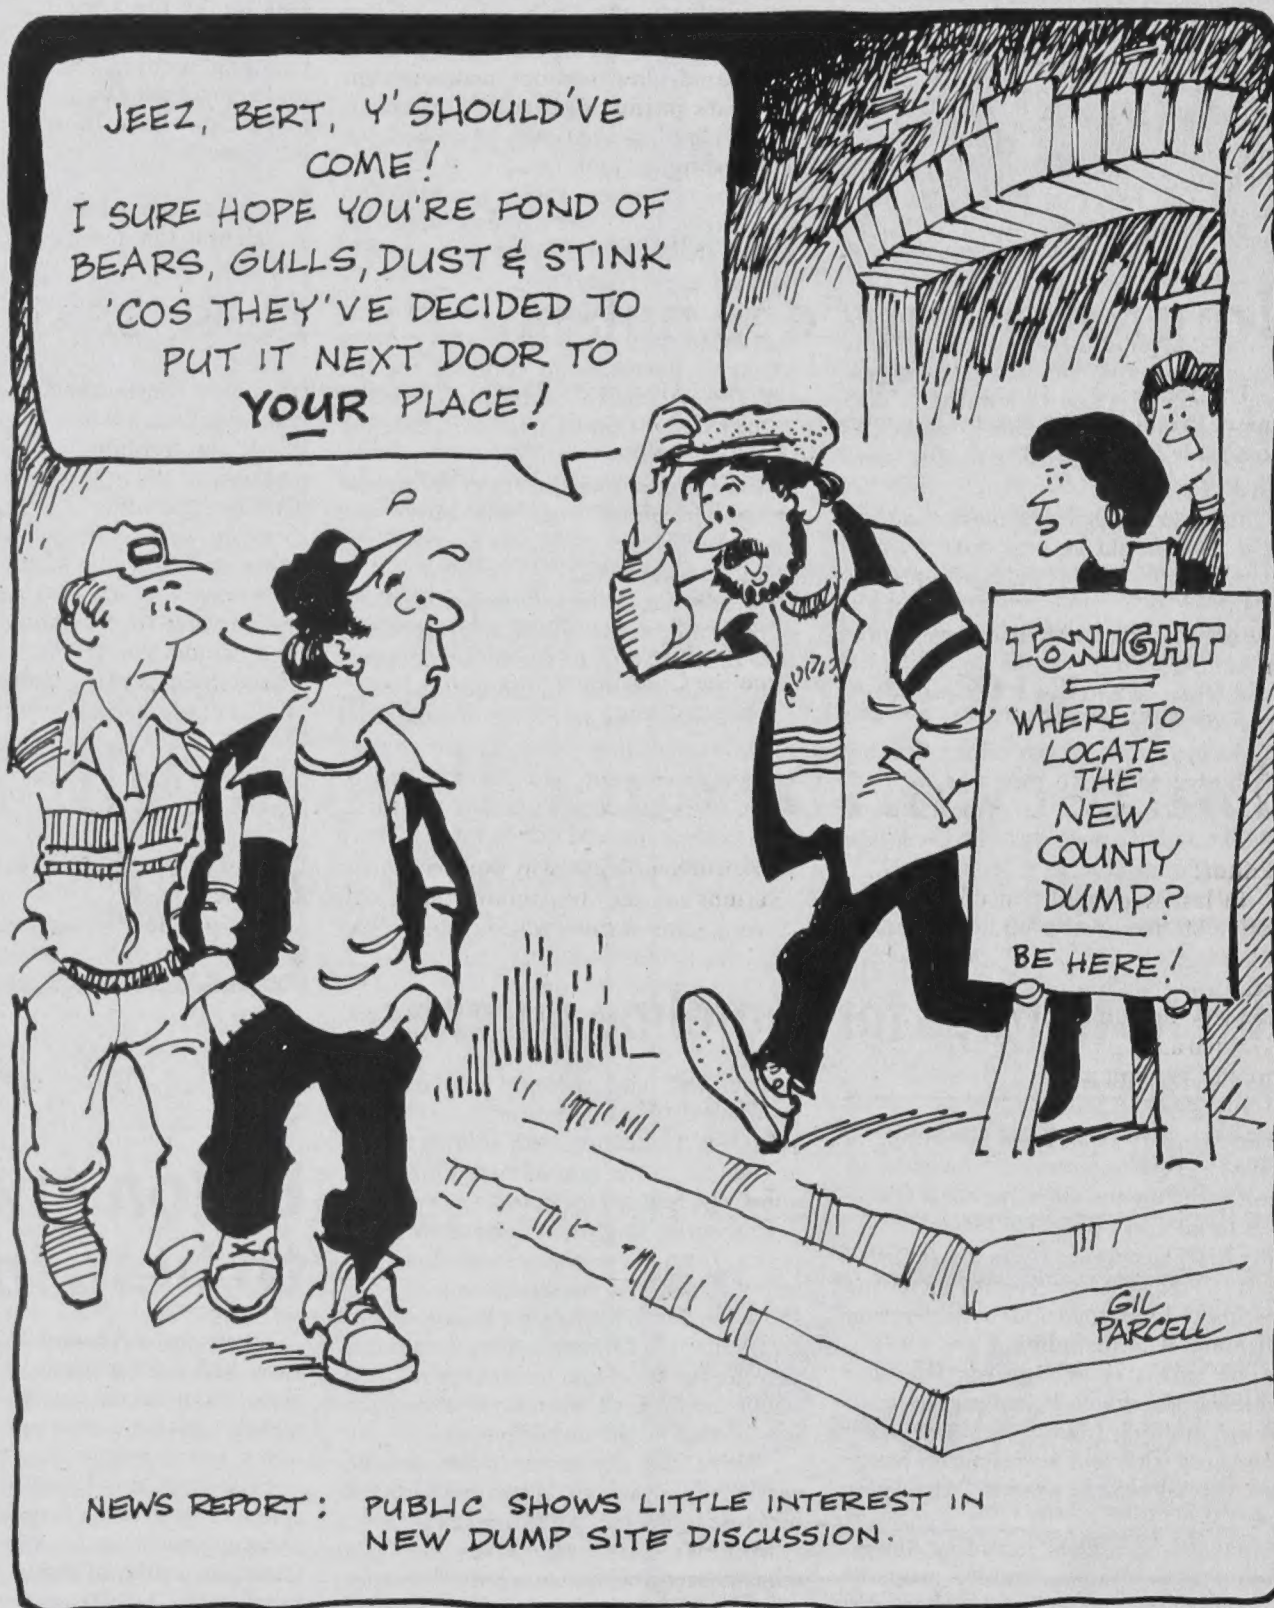

In addition to death and taxes, the other certainty in the world is garbage. How and where to dispose of the leftovers of our consumer society is becoming an increasingly complex problem. A problem that won't disappear if it is simply ignored.

The municipal administration, through the county, is attempting to tackle the complex problem. A county-wide study is underway which should set the plan for where we put our garbage well into the next century. These are important matters under consideration and the public is being given an opportunity to comment, criticize, and question the wisdom of the "experts".

However, the first session of public consultation drew a paltry 30 members of the public. The low turn-out could be indicative of any number of responses; poor promotion, inopportune timing, lack of interest, or a perception that there is little impact the public can have on the planning process.

Whatever the reason, it should be dealt with immediately because not only do these meetings appear to be a waste of time, they are costly as well. At an estimated $5,000 per meeting, and with six planned, in addition to workshops and open houses, consulting with the public is not an inexpensive undertaking.

The politicians and planners should reassess their approach.

Chamber's tourist guide panders to advertisers

The following is an open letter to the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce.

I recently picked up a complimentary issue of the 1990 Tourist and Travel Guide to send off to friend in England who will be visiting the area this summer.

I looked at this issue, and to say I was disappointed would be an understatement. This is not a tourist's guide to the Haliburton Highlands. The "Haliburton Index to Advertisers" on Page 5, the only index in the Guide, attests to the fact that this is an advertising tool for the businesses who bought space. Of the 24 pages in this booklet, less than ten pages are devoted to text and pictures of what Haliburton County has to offer, while the balance of the pages are devoted strictly to advertising.

I feel a Tourist and Travel Guide should, at the very least, have separate lists for all the amenities. To name a few, accommodations, restaurants, camping, golfing, etc., with location and approximate costs; and all the retail stores, not just those who paid to advertise.

It is a shame, with all that the County of Haliburton has to offer, that the Chamber of Commerce would consider the 1990 Tourist and Travel Guide a satisfactory tool to encourage visitors. It might well be one of the main reasons why tourism in Haliburton is on the decrease.

Another question, why is the 1990 Guide still being distributed? Is a 1991 Guide not available?

Yours very truly,
Carole Bullen.

Improved guide is hot-off-the press, says Chamber president

The following is Chamber of Commerce President, Lyn Steven's, response to Carole Bullen's letter.

Dear Carole:

I was present when you delivered your letter on March 4, 1991, at the Chamber office.

I was very upset on reading your criticisms of our new Destinations Guide. On reading further I realized you were referring to our 1990 Travel Guide and you are right. That guide was not what we wanted for the Haliburton Highlands.

We have produced a new Destinations Guide for 1991 and it just came off the press two weeks ago. We have tried to make the Guide a magazine type production which the public would keep on their coffee table for enjoyable reading.

We have had very interesting articles written by some popular writers including Pierre Berton and I am sure you will find the Guide most interesting.

We had every intention of listing all members - restaurants, motels, stores, etc. - this year, but the cost of production made this prohibitive. We did reduce the cost of the advertisements to make the ads more affordable for more members and subsequently have a better coverage of the Highlands.

We are looking into new and innovative ways to distribute these Guides and would gladly mail one to your friend in England together with a printed list of other member resorts.

We appreciate constructive criticism from the public and would like to invite you to sit on our marketing board and to give your input to the 1992 Destination Guide.

Please contact me or our Manager if you have any other questions.

Yours truly,
Lyn Stevens,
President,
Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce.

Lutterworth councillors are far from hypocrites

Editor:

In last week's edition of The Times Mike Maher wrote a letter to the editor, from which I quote, "Today, when I read the reaction of a number of your readers, including Irene Moore, Don Holden and John Latimer, I felt obliged to add my comments". How typical of someone to sit back and listen to everyone else then fall off the fence one way or the other!

In connection with the letter headed "Canadians should be proud of alliance with Americans," K.G. Walsh stated "Where would the allies have been during the first and second world wars?"

During the second world war the allies fought for two years without the American's help. It wasn't until they were bombed by the Japanese that the Americans came into the war. (Although they did what they still do so very well—supply guns and ammunition).

As for Lutterworth Council being a bunch of hypocrites, why was the United Nations so quick to condone the use of force against a third world country like Iraq this time? It wasn't that long ago that the Russians invaded Afghanistan and played havoc on that country. Where were the United States then?

Canada and other United Nation countries were suckered into this war to help make it a United National war instead of what it really was—an American one.

During the Reagan year there were three trillion dollars spent on Arms in the United States. These weapons had to be used in order to build more weapons. (i.e. 60,000 bombing raids in Iraq and Kuwait). What this really equals is Iraqi lives for American jobs. In Ottawa, Bush's yes man, Brian Mulroney, keeps helping to create American jobs.

It's a pretty good system when you can get paid to flatten a country such as Kuwait and then get paid to go in and rebuild it. And you say Lutterworth Councillors are a bunch of hypocrites!

Be loyal and proud Canadians—not fooled ones.

Shannon Mercer.

Ramp takes drudgery out of paying bills

Editor:

Ever been excited about "paying a bill"?

Well, that's how I felt about paying our Hydro bill this month. As I rolled up the new ramp myself, pushed the button, and watched the door open before me, I was aware of the fact that this building is definitely a wheelchair-accessible place of business.

Passing on through the second automatically-opened door with the push of a button, (which makes a building truly accessible), I proceeded to go about business of paying the bill.

Most people take this kind of activity for granted, maybe even begrudging the time it takes. However, for me, and I'm sure for a number of other people in the community who are prevented or limited from conducting their own business due to steps and heavy doors, this facility will be very much appreciated.

Hats off to Ontario Hydro. We now have one more building accessible to everyone who chooses to enter.

Even the mythical Shangri-La had warts about a wonderful place—providing you were free, white and male. In More's Utopia, slavery was to be practiced and women were to be kept firmly under the old patriarchal thumb.

Even Shangri-La had warts. The mythical Tibetan lamasery where the living was easy and time stood still was alas, also less than perfect. Sure, folks got to live a couple of hundred years—but only if they never left town. One trip across the county line for a Saturday night dance and poof—biology plays catch-up. Inmates who enjoyed perpetual youth back in the compound suddenly resembled large, very old raisins.

So what's a person looking for Heaven on Earth to do?

Well, there's always the island of Nauru.

Nauru isn't the figment of anyone's imagination. It's a coral atoll in the middle of the South Pacific. It only covers about eight square miles, but that's okay because there are only about 5,000 people living there.

And what a life: The average annual income of every inhabitant—man, woman and babe in arms—is $20,000 U.S. And here's the kicker: They don't have to do a lick of work to collect. Nauru is one big phosphate mine. (Bird poop, not to put too fine a point on it.) Australia mines the phosphate and pays the citizens of Nauru big bucks for the privilege. The results: Nauruans are rich beyond their wildest dreams. So rich they don't even have to bother shoveling the phosphate on to ships. Three thousand labourers are imported from elsewhere to do the dirty work.

Which means all Nauruans have to do the live long day is lie around and spend, spend, spend. And they do. Most have cars and TVs, even though there's nowhere to drive and nothing much to watch. Nauruans are prone to alcoholism and suicide. They also have some of the highest incidences of obesity, diabetes and heart disease in the world.

But there's some good news. The phosphate is running out. Some day soon Nauruans are going to be able to escape from Heaven on Earth and join the real world.

Drawdown leaves fish out of water

by Susan Wilson

In most of Haliburton, water drawdown is a summertime issue. The watershed in all but the northern reaches of the county is managed by the Trent-Severn Waterway to maintain flows and levels in that system all the way to Lake Ontario.

But up in Dorset, the drawdown is happening now. It's been going on since mid-January and is scheduled to end about mid-March, about now. Sounds like heaven, doesn't it? Steady lake levels from mid-May all the way through the summer and then the water falls in the dead of winter when nobody cares.

John Clayton cares. The Dorset store owner and postmaster is angry that the drawdown takes place in winter because he's convinced it is damaging the lake trout population in Lake Kawagama.

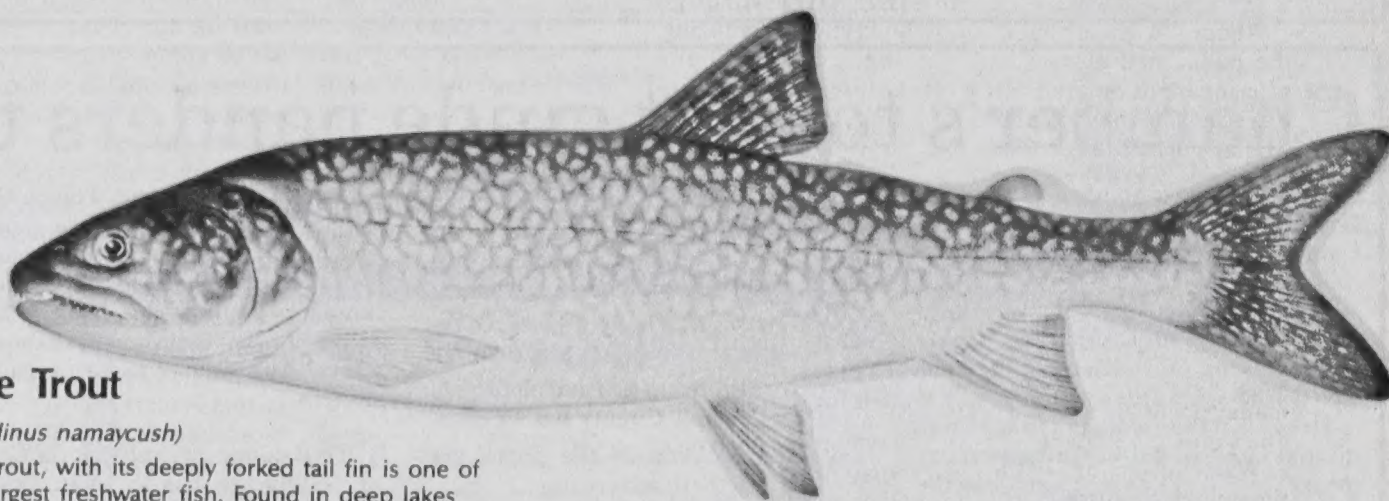

Lake trout are a particularly sensitive species of fish. Because they occur naturally only in northern North America, the one per cent of Ontario's 250,000 lakes that provide suitable habitat for lake trout constitutes one-quarter of the world's supply of lake-trout lakes. Their optimal habitat is restricted to a deep, cold band of water around 10 degrees Celsius that can support only a limited number of fish.

To spawn, the trout come up from the depths in early to mid-October to seek out shoals and shorelines of clean rubble and rock. The eggs are sprayed over the rocks and, being small, they fall in among the stones where they are protected from predators in a stable environment for six months until hatching takes place in March. If the water level falls after spawning has taken place, the eggs will be exposed to the air and die.

Because the winter drawdown in the lakes on either side of the Dorset bridge—Kawagama to the east and Lake of Bays to the west—takes place three months after the trout spawn, Clayton feels the eggs are being killed before they hatch, contributing to the decline he has seen in the number of lake trout in those lakes.

"I first noticed the problem ten years ago," he says, "and I've been trying to get it changed for the last eight. They've built cages around the piers of the bridge in town to force the fish to spawn lower down, but what about the other 50 spawning beds on Kawagama? And as far as I know, they've never stocked Kawagama either because they claim the lake is reproducing naturally.

"There's all this emphasis from the MNR on the importance of protecting lakes that are suitable for lake trout. But they're the ones who control the drawdown. When you complain to them about it, though, everybody's got a buck to pass."

Lake Trout

(Salvelinus namaycush)

This trout, with its deeply forked tail fin is one of our largest freshwater fish. Found in deep lakes throughout much of Ontario it spawns on shoals in October or November. Averages 1.3 to 2.2 kg (3 to 5 lb.). ONTARIO RECORD: 28.63 KG (63 LB. 2 OZ.)

The water levels throughout this watershed, which runs from Algonquin Park through Haliburton and Muskoka to Georgian Bay, are controlled by the Algonquin Region office of the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) in Huntsville where Wayne Corry is Water Management Supervisor. Corry describes the drawdown as an annual cycle.

"On January 15th," he explains, "we start taking the logs out and, by March 15th, the water is down about three feet. Then we close off the control dams to trap the snowmelt and spring rains. By the end of April, the lakes are filled and they stay at that level to mid-May. Then the water falls slowly over the summer.

"From September 1st to October 15th, we force the water down about two feet so the trout will spawn on deeper beds. The water level stays fairly steady from then until mid-January, rising a bit from fall rains. The difference in water level from October 15th to March 15th is two feet in Kawagama and about 18 inches in the other lakes."

Corry is well aware of the critical effect water levels have on lake trout. For advice and expertise in this area, he turns to MNR fisheries and wildlife biologists. "We operate according to a plan drawn up initially in 1940 and revised in 1969," says Corry. "According to the biologists who helped draw up these plans, a drop of two feet would be okay. Not perfect, but okay."

Corry reports that there is no intention of revising the operating plan again, even though it is over 20 years old, because waterfront development since 1969 has been based on that plan. "We did try to alter the plan on a couple of other lakes a few years ago," he says, "to keep water levels up. But it caused a lot of damage to shoreline installations during ice break-up. So we won't be trying that again."

Corry's purpose in lowering the water levels from mid-January to mid-March is to control spring flooding along the system. "On the lakes," he admits, "it never amounts to more than nuisance high water. But it can be a real problem along the rivers. In 1985, which was the last time we had a severe problem, six houses in River Cove had water inside."

Okay, but what about the lake trout? Is the number of fish really declining in Kawagama and Lake of Bays and, if so, is it because the spawn are being killed by the drawdown?

Greg Deyne (pronounced dean) says yes and no: yes for Lake of Bays, no for Kawagama. Deyne is Acting Fish and Wildlife Supervisor with the Bracebridge District of the MNR. A former fisheries biologist, he acknowledges that loss of eggs due to the drawdown is a legitimate concern.

"About five years ago," he says, "we initiated habitat reconstruction as well as the construction of artificial beds on Lake of Bays to make sure the trout had plenty of places to spawn at depths where they wouldn't be affected by the drawdown. Between 1984 and 1987, we put 400 tonnes of limestone and gravel into 20 shoals and we've done others since then, including $10,000 worth last year. A lot of this work has been done through the Community Fisheries Involvement Program which involves permanent residents and cottagers."

Deyne and his staff have done surveys to show that they're getting higher yields of eggs from the reconstructed beds—four to five times higher, he maintains. "Based on egg distribution on 14 shoals, we were suffering 28 per cent loss from the drawdown. Including the estimates of densities on man-made shoals, the loss has fallen to 12 per cent. We know we're getting fry swimming from them."

As far as Kawagama is concerned, Deyne reports that, aside from the work done at the bridge in Dorset, no spawning beds have been constructed on that lake nor has it ever been stocked. "There's no reason to," he says. "Kawagama is in balance because lake trout remain the top predator. We're much more concerned about the effect over-harvesting is having on the trout population in Kawagama, especially during the winter. That's why we did a creel census in the winter of 1989 and why we're going to do another one this spring. But as far as reproduction is concerned, and the growth of fry into mature, reproducing adults, it ain't broke so let's not try to fix it."

But as far as John Clayton is concerned, it is broke. "When you listen to the fishermen, they say they can't catch any trout. My dad used to guide fishermen here every spring in the 1940s and 1950s, and they never had any trouble catching fish."

As for Corry's claim that the water goes down just two feet between October and March, Clayton says right now it's down six feet in Kawagama and four feet in Lake of Bays.

Clayton is sympathetic, however, to what he sees as the biologists' dilemma. "I think the biologists are caught and they don't know what to do. They know that trout spawn higher than two feet and they have to know the drawdown is killing thousands and thousands of eggs each year. But if the water control people don't lower the water levels, there'll be flooding in some areas and property will be damaged. On the other hand, if they do take the water down, it's the trout that suffer."

"What frustrates me is that, because you can't see the spawning beds through the ice, they can get away with claiming that everything is okay."

Deyne admits that, if he had complete control over the situation, he wouldn't have any drawdown. "If we change the ground rules, could we do better?", he asks rhetorically. "Sure we could. But we have to work within the existing agreements and operating plans and do the best we can."

Public encouraged to participate in waste management process

by Susan Grober

About 30 members of the public had a crack at offering input on the Haliburton County Waste Management Master Plan during a workshop last Saturday.

This workshop provided the public with a forum for input before consultants A.J. Robinson and Associates come out with the first stage of studies on the waste management plan, which is due sometime in April.

Waste diversion initiatives were discussed. The province has outlined targets for diverting waste from landfill sites through methods such as reducing, reusing, recycling, and composting.

According to the province, 25 per cent of all waste should be diverted by 1992. By 2000, 50 per cent diversion is the target.

Consultant Paul Frigon of A.J. Robinson and Associates also outlined the process of selecting potential areas for a landfill site.

The engineers must identify areas where a landfill would never be placed, such as near a wetland or deer yard. Once this is completed, the engineers are left with candidate areas.

Then it must be determined what impact a landfill site would have on the candidate areas. At the end of the one-and-a-half-year process, the engineers come up with a preferred site.

Another important aspect is whether landfills should be natural or engineered. An engineered site would cost about 10 times more.

During the entire process of devising a waste management plan, public input is being encouraged.

On hand at the workshop were Waste Management Co-ordinator Len Munt, Steering Committee Chairman Carol Puffer, and Public Liaison Committee Co-chairman Bernie Davis.

Steve McKelvie, who also co-chairs the Public Liaison Committee, noted that activities will be held in the summer so cottagers can have their say in the plan.

"There will be numerous opportunities for seasonal residents to comment," he said.

And Bicroft Reeve Bill Howe stressed the importance of demanding long term goals for waste management from the newly elected government at Queen's Park.

Howe wants people to write the government to make politicians aware the county is planning ahead on waste management.

Now is the time to find out what direction the government wants to go, he said. The plan must be in accordance with any new legislation which is planned.

"If you don't know where you're going, you're going to wind up someplace else," he said.

Once the first stage of the study is out, a public meeting will be held so people can provide more input.

Before that, however, input is required through a questionnaire to determine the public's ideas on what factors should be considered most important before a waste management system is chosen.

Through the questionnaire, the public is asked to give weight to such criteria as air quality, water quality, land use, plant and animal habitat, social and cultural environment, and economic and financial effects.

Another segment of the questionnaire deals with the public's ideas on where a landfill shouldn't be situated.

Some members of the public who attended the meeting expressed concern that there aren't enough people getting involved during the early stages of the plan.

"We must talk to our neighbours and tell them to get involved now," said one woman. "Tell them put up or shut up and say 'I don't want to see you at a meeting two years down the road complaining you never had a chance to disagree.'"

Jeanne Sears, who writes the Around The County Town column in this newspaper, said all it takes is a few short, ordinary words to get a message across. "If you want people to listen, you have to come down to their understanding."

Gordon Smith, who is Stanhope's representative on the Public Liaison Committee (PLC), said a small turnout at the meeting shouldn't be too discouraging.

"We have a tendency to forget that we're all people — the PLC, the consulting firm, the Steering Committee, all of us here."

Smith recommended that members of the public attend PLC meetings. The committee, which normally meets once a month at the county office in Minden, will begin holding its meetings at different locations in the county.

The next meeting is April 8 at the Bicroft Community Centre.

Stanhope rezoning by-laws headed to OMB hearings

Objections have been filed against Stanhope council's decisions to rezone Constance Island in Kushog Lake and a gravel pit along Highway 118.

Both rezoning applications were approved at the February meeting of council and letters of objection have been received for both decisions.

The rezoning of Constance Island allows the three owners to sever the 20-acre island into six cottage lots ranging in size from two to six acres each.

Cottagers who own property on the mainland adjacent to the island have objected to the proposed development, citing concerns for wildlife, boater safety and water quality.

The township has received a total of five objections to the rezoning of the island.

The second rezoning application was for a gravel pit on Highway 118, owned by Royel Paving.

The pit was used, under a special permit, during the reconstruction of the highway last summer and the owners have applied to rezone the property to allow continued extraction of gravel.

Barbara Beggs, a neighboring property owner, has objected to the rezoning claiming the pit will devalue her property, interfere with the water table and create traffic problems along the highway.

The objections will be sent to the Ontario Municipal Board to schedule hearings.

Girl who smoked pot on school grounds won't serve time

The following cases were heard by Provincial Court Judge George Inrig last Wednesday in Minden. Chris Meinhardt acted as Crown Attorney.

Student won't serve time

An 18-year-old Haliburton high school student will not go to jail for possession of marijuana, despite a recommendation by Federal Crown Attorney Lorne Chester.

Rebecca Jane Felts appeared in court for sentencing after the judge reviewed her pre-sentence report.

Last November 22, Felts and a young offender were "caught red-handed" smoking a marijuana cigarette on Haliburton Highlands Secondary School property by Vice-Principal Gary Brohman, said Chester.

Brohman called the OPP, and Felts voluntarily handed over five marijuana cigarettes to a police officer. The police charged her with possession of a narcotic.

Because the offence occurred on school property, Chester asked for a jail term of seven days.

Chester said he's visited the high school on several occasions to speak about illegal drugs.

He said it's common knowledge among students that if you are caught using such substances on school property, you will be sentenced to a short jail term.

However, defence lawyer Brad Johnston argued that Felts wasn't attending school at the time Chester made his presentation. Johnston volunteered to act as duty counsel on behalf of Felts, who didn't have a lawyer.

Johnston said Felts has attended drug counselling since the incident occurred. He also stressed she is a youthful first offender.

"I have said in the past that where drugs are used in the school, the person should go to jail," said Judge Inrig.

Judge Inrig also made note of Felts' pre-sentence report, which outlines background details such as family, school, and work.

"The pre-sentence report is not a good report," he said, noting Felts' frequent absences from school. "But on the other hand, it indicates previous problems," he said.

In the courts

Pointing out that Felts may not have been aware of the usual jail term handed down to drug users in schools, Judge Inrig said "I think we can handle this situation this time without a jail term."

The judge fined Felts $150, and gave her 18 months probation. He ordered her not to possess any non-prescribed drugs, and told her to take drug counselling.

Also, Felts must obey the rules of the high school, must not be late, and must have no absenteeism.

Jail term sought

A 19-year-old Glamorgan man pleaded guilty to charges which include breaking and entering into cottages, and stealing liquor and a CD player.

Douglas Ivan Haywood pleaded guilty to breaching his probation by possessing alcohol on July 13, 1990.

On that date, two part bottles of beer and a part case of beer was seized by OPP Constable Mark Davis from a vehicle occupied by Haywood and his brothers, Jack and Dawsey.

When Davis placed the alcohol on the hood of the vehicle to write a ticket, Douglas took the alcohol and ran off with it, said Crown Attorney Meinhardt.

As a result of this incident, Haywood was charged with breach of probation and obstruction of justice. However, Meinhardt withdrew the latter charge.

Haywood also pled guilty to two breach of probation charges, one from last August, and another from January. The charges were laid because Haywood failed to attend counselling for alcohol abuse as prescribed by his probation officer.

The probation order had been placed in May of 1990, and Haywood first reported to the probation officer on June 7.

Haywood first agreed to contact the FourCAST addiction recovery centre about a residential treatment program, but repeatedly failed to do so, said Meinhardt.

Later, because Haywood had no further contact with FourCAST since July of 1990, he was given the option of receiving treatment from FourCAST or Alcoholics Anonymous the following January, said Meinhardt.

Haywood chose AA, but "he has completely failed to comply with that particular condition," Meinhardt said.

Haywood was also arraigned on separate charges of breaking and entering into three Glamorgan cottages last September. The first two incident involved thefts.

He pleaded guilty to break, enter and theft at the Wolf Lake cottage of Colin Foster between September 3 and 25.

Haywood and two others took a partly full 60 oz bottle of vodka, and a part case of beer, which were not recovered. The door to the cottage was damaged during the break-in.

Haywood also pleaded guilty to break, enter and theft at the Pine Lake cottage of Michael Milton between September 17 and 18.

Meinhardt said Haywood and two others stole a butcher knife, assorted liquor, a compact disc player, and a six channel audio mixer.

And Haywood pleaded guilty to breaking and entering with the intent to commit an indictable offence at the Wolf Lake cottage of Rod McDonald.

Meinhardt said Haywood and others gained entry by sliding open a window. "Once they were inside, nothing was found so they left," he said.

There was no damage, and nothing was stolen.

Meinhardt said he is seeking a term of incarceration for Haywood.

Defence lawyer Brad Johnston requested a pre-sentence report, and the matter was adjourned to April 17.

Suspended sentence for theft

An 18-year-old received a suspended sentence and 18 months probation for breaking into a store and taking cigarettes last year.

Crown Attorney Meinhardt noted that the charge against Melanie A. Austin is serious. However, he also noted that Austin is young, and has committed no previous offences.

Judge Inrig said Austin's pre-sentence report "is hopeful, rather than being good."

A presentation on Austin's behalf seemed to put the judge's mind at ease that there is reason for hope.

Victim had loaded gun pointed at her head

Crown seeking jail term for man guilty of harassment

by Susan Grober

Crown Attorney Chris Meinhardt says he'll request a six-to-eight-month prison term for a man who has pleaded guilty to five charges stemming from his repeated harassment of a woman he used to live with.

George R. Pettes, 57, appeared before Judge George Inrig in provincial court in Minden last Wednesday on charges of assault with a weapon, damage to property, and three counts of break, enter and theft.

Court was told that on June 24, 1989, Pettes threatened to kill the woman he was living with. She called the police, and gave her name and the location of her Stanhope home, said Meinhardt.

Pettes put a loaded .25 calibre semiautomatic gun to the woman's head, saying "Hang up or you're dead," the Crown Attorney continued.

The woman backed away as Pettes waved the handgun at her, said Meinhardt. She warned him she had already called the police, and Pettes said he would kill her if she mentioned the gun.

Meinhardt said when the police did arrive, the woman was afraid to mention the handgun, which was not registered and is a restricted weapon.

On September 23, 1989, when the couple had not been co-habiting for three months, Pettes went to the woman's home in an intoxicated state, said Meinhardt.

Pettes dragged the phone line out of the wall, and severed the outside line with a pair of cutters. However, this was done after the woman had already called the police. Pettes left before the police arrived.

On January 3, 1990, Pettes kicked in the woman's front door, damaging the door jam. He took a 12-inch brass wall plate, a banjo, and a shotgun, said Meinhardt.

Meinhardt said Pettes returned the wall plate on February 8, when the woman attended at his home. However, at the time she was afraid and told Pettes to keep the banjo and shotgun, which were later seized by police while executing a search warrant on June 29, said Meinhardt.

Young offender placed on probation after pleading guilty to two thefts

Austin appeared for sentencing with her stepmother's mother from Quebec. The woman explained that Austin hitchhiked to their Quebec home from Haliburton last month, and has been living there ever since.

"I have no complaints whatsoever with Melanie," said the woman. "She attends school, she's taking French. She has all the opportunities. We've come a long way with her."

Judge Inrig began to commend the woman for her dedication to Austin, but the woman wouldn't hear of it. "I compliment Melanie, because she's been A1," she said.

Probation for break, enter, theft

A Gooderham resident was placed on 18 months probation for two counts of breaking and entering, one which involved a theft.

The accused pleaded guilty to breaking into two Glamorgan cottages between October 19 and 22, 1990. At the first cottage, he and another person consumed a part bottle of whisky worth $10, and did $10 worth of damage to the door.

At the second cottage, a padlock on the front door was forced open. No liquor was found, so the pair left, said Crown Attorney Meinhardt.

Along with the probation term, Meinhardt asked that the accused be ordered not to associate with the co-accused, as well as three other friends.

Defence lawyer Brad Johnston argued that the man was not co-accused with the other three. One person mentioned, Douglas Ivan Haywood, is the accused's cousin, and the rest have been friends for years, Johnston added.

"They live in Gooderham, which is a small community," said Johnston.

"These people are not what you'd call the cream of the community," said Meinhardt, pointing out that the accused is young and impressionable.

Judge Inrig only ordered that the accused not associate with his co-accused.

The accused, now 18, was 17 years old at the time of the offences, and may not be identified in accordance with the Young Offenders Act.

CHACE streamlines operations after on-site analysis

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

After completing an on-site analysis of its operation the County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment (CHACE) is making some changes.

The analysis, coordinated by consultant Bob Bennett, involved staff and directors of CHACE as well as members of the community. The participants identified strengths and weaknesses in the operation of the agency and made recommendations for improvements.

Among the recommendations was a revamped organizational structure to make the board of directors and committees more effective.

The report also suggested that immediate steps be taken to address the shortage of space at Minden's Resource Centre.

CHACE administrator Sue Valm says she is very impressed with the outcome of the on-site analysis, although there were very few surprises in the recommendations.

"It's nice to have our strengths rated and highlighted," said Valm.

By involving staff and members in the analysis and development of recommendations, Valm said the agency learned some important lessons about problem solving.

The study looked at the agency's financial situation as well as the delivery of service. It was concluded that CHACE has been financially well-managed over the past five years and is in good shape in that regard.

It was recommended the the agency's fund-raising practices be reviewed and that the annual Christmas Bazaar be the only fund-raising event held during the 1991/92 year.

The report suggested that more money be directed toward staff training, and area that is described as important to agency stability and growth.

As far as the delivery of service goes, the report concludes that the programs offered by CHACE have been successful as illustrated by the increase in use over the last five years.

It was suggested that immediate steps be taken to address the problem of space shortage and under-staffing at the Minden

Resource Centre and also a study be conducted of the under-utilization of the Haliburton Resource Centre.

It was felt the agency needs to increase its profile in the community and Valm said the agency will be undertaking a public relations campaign. Under the proposed new organizational structure, a communications/visibility committee will be established to heighten awareness among the public and program users.

Man pleads guilty to harassing woman

On April 19, Pettes returned to the woman's home and stole a Pioneer chainsaw, a Black and Decker Skilsaw, and a Yamaha outboard motor.

The woman asked Pettes to at least return the motor, which belonged to someone else, said Meinhardt. He told her if she came to his house alone, he would return it. She did, and he returned all three items.

On June 22, Pettes was sent home from work because he was under the influence of alcohol, said Meinhardt.

Later that day, Pettes went to the woman's home and took an AM/FM tape recorder, a pint jar with a metal top fastener, and a shotgun, Meinhardt said.

Meinhardt said police executed a search warrant a week later, and recovered the jar, the shotguns, and the banjo.

Judge Inrig heeded defence lawyer Brad Johnston's request of a pre-sentence report.

Pettes is on a recognizance which requires him to stay away from the victim.

Pettes also pled guilty to two charges of impaired driving.

Last May 11, Pettes was stopped at a RIDE check at Highways 35 and 121. Meinhardt said Pettes told police it was one in a million that he drove while drunk. The police officer who viewed Pettes said the effects of alcohol were extreme.

About a month later, on June 9, Pettes approached a RIDE check at the same intersection, turned into the closed Esso Station and went out the other way.

Police stopped Pettes, and asked why he had turned around. Pettes said he needed gas badly to get home, but the officer noted he had a quarter tank of gas.

All sentencing will be dealt with when Pettes returns to court in Minden on May 8. Any other charges against Pettes to date will be withdrawn upon sentencing, said Meinhardt.

OPP wants community policing throughout Haliburton County

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The local detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is hoping to establish community policing throughout Haliburton County as soon as possible.

The system involves assigning one officer to provide police services to a particular community. Haliburton village already has a community-based officer and Minden village is in the process of setting up a community policing system of its own.

Last Wednesday, OPP Sergeant Doug Bernardi met with members of Stanhope Council to explain the new direction being taken in the county.

Currently the Minden OPP divides the county into four patrol zones and officers are assigned a zone to patrol during a shift. The new system will concentrate one officer in one area of the county, allowing him to become familiar with the people who live in the community.

The system has been in place in Haliburton village since last June and the OPP says it has been successful in solving and preventing crimes in the village.

"In Haliburton Constable (Ron) Buchanan has been instrumental in solving a lot of problems," said Bernardi. "Situations have been resolved before they actually happen."

When an area has been selected for community policing, a police affairs committee is established consisting of representatives from the public who work with the officer to identify and address problems. Bernardi said the system allows each area to adapt to its own specific needs.

"You're not going to establish an officer in our principal town," said Councillor Fred Gardiner. "We don't have one."

Bernardi said the specifics of the new system will have to be worked out in consultation with the officers before any decisions are made. If a need for an OPP sub-station in Stanhope is recognized, Bernardi said the township would be involved.

Councillors expressed unanimous support for the concept. "I think it's a move in the right direction," said Murray Daniels.

The Bill Roodenburg rink was the overall winner in the Minden Curling Club's Straw and Stone Bonspiel held March 9 and 10. Included in the championship team were, clockwise from the bottom, Bill, Laurie-Anne, Herb and Sybil Roodenburg and Brian Adamson.

A member of the Rockcliffe Tavern team finds himself flat on the ice as the puck slips out of his reach. Rockcliffe defeated The Times in the final game of the round robin play-offs, 6-4, spoiling The Times' chance to advance to the finals.

Tykes lose close one to Haliburton

On the weekend of March 9 and 10, the Minden Major Tykes took part in the North Division playoffs.

Our first game was with our toughest competitions all year, Haliburton. Haliburton took the lead in the first period by two goals. Then Jamie Colliss decided it was time to get things warmed up and put us in the game with a beautiful unassisted goal.

During the second period, Haliburton managed to get one more, leaving the score 3-1. Our outstanding players, Ben Carpenter, Stephen Johnson, Justin Walker, Nicholas Mitchell and Lance Aggett, kept the Haliburton team from dominating the game. It was then Adam Tomlinson's turn to add to our score with a hard working, unassisted goal.

During the third period Haliburton scored once more making 4-2. Andy Kinsman then gave us two unassisted, quick goals making it a tie game at the 1:38 mark of the third period. With 26 seconds

Home Hardware and Jug City will square off in play-off final

It will be Home Hardware and Westside Jug City in the Men's Recreational Hockey League play-offs. The final two teams were decided as the league completed the first round of play-offs Monday night.

Home had already been assured of a spot in the final play-offs, however, the second place was still up for grabs going onto last Monday's games. Three teams had the potential of playing Home in the best of three final. After the dust had settled, Sid Stamp Fuels and Westside Jug City had identical win/loss records. The tie was broken with the calculation of goals for, minus, goals against during the play-offs. Westside came up with a 10-2 edge over the Stamp team and claimed the last play-off position.

The first game last Monday night offered Stamp Fuels the opportunity to nail down the second play-off berth as Stamp took on Home Hardware. A victory by Stamp would have eliminated the possibility of any of the other teams tying them for second place.

However, Home turned in the usual consistent performance which has served it so well through the season. It was a closely played match which saw the Home squad score one goal in each of the first and second periods to establish a strong lead going into the final frame. Ben Manuge scored the first goal for the Home team with the assist going to Kevin Hamilton. The second period goal was an unassisted effort from the stick of Barry Boice, the first of three he was to score.

The only goal for Sid Stamp Fuels came in the third frame when Craig Crowe connected on a pass from Ivan Ingram.

Three more goals by Home put the game on ice and placed Stamp's play-off chance in jeopardy. Scoring for home were Boice with the rest of his hat-trick and Kevin Hamilton. The final score was 5-1.

In the second game, The Times had an opportunity to secure a tie for the last play-off spot. They faced Rockcliffe Tavern, which had been eliminated from further play-off action.

Rockcliffe opened the scoring with Jeff Howe on a pass from Ron Perrin and John Ballantyne. Doug Allison responded for The Times before the period ended with the assists going to Barry Shaw. Scott Nesbitt claimed the lead for The Times in the second period with the assist credited to Dave Crego and Shaw.

Stamp Fuels edged out of second

However, before the period ended, Rockcliffe captured the lead with two more goals and was on its way to spoiling the play-off chances for The Times. Scoring were Howe from Sid McKeigan and Jason Stamp from Ron Perrin.

Into the third period, Rockcliffe lengthened its lead on a goal from Joe Graham with the assist from Scott Gartshore. The Times battled back to tie the game with goals by George Crofts and Dave Crego. Assists went to Allison on the first, and Nesbitt and Andy McKenzie on the second.

The line of Scott Gartshore and Jeff Howe were not about to let the tie stand however. Gartshore connected twice before the period ended to ensure the Rockcliffe victory and to squeeze The Times out of a play-off position. Howe assisted on both the final goals with a second assist being awarded to Ballantyne. The final score--Rockcliffe 6, The Times 4.

Mathematically, Westside needed just a win to clinch the final play-off spot. The team had more goals in their favour than Stamp Fuels, but needed one more victory to pull ahead and into contention.

Driven by that knowledge, the Jug City team scored two goals in each of the three periods and nearly blanked the Hartwick squad. Scoring for Westside were Dave Dollo with three, Dean Hewitt with an unassisted single, and four assists, and a single from Dave Hartwick and Bart Hilhorst. The single Hartwick goal came just before the game ended when Scott Hamilton scored on a pass from Kevin Mills.

The Westside win assured them of a place in the play-offs, bumping Stamp Fuels.

The play-offs, a best of three series, begins this Monday night. The game time has been moved back to 8 p.m.

Minden thrashes Beaverton in penalty-filled contest

Minden Tri-County Pee Wees travelled to Beaverton on Saturday afternoon. It was expected to be a physical game and it was, Beaverton hooking, slashing, and being plain dirty. There have been times when Minden's example was no better, but give the guys credit, they held their cool this day, and gave Beaverton an 8-1 licking. Too bad referees are exempt from penalties for poor officiating, however, obvious fouls, especially so numerous and unwarranted, should never be allowed.

Arron Belton got things rolling for Minden at 3:12 of the first, assisted by Todd Redgrave. Beaverton tied it early in the second and Minden made it 2-1 at 8:05 of the second when Todd Redgrave connected from Andrew Crego and Arron Belton. Travis Willison made it 3-1 for Minden when he moved in from the point to take a pass from Todd Redgrave and Marty Dettman picking up the other assist at 2:12. The second period ended 3-1 for Minden.

Minden came out flying in the third and despite the Beaverton rough housing, poured five unanswered goals past the Beaverton goalie.

Marty Dettman connected on a pretty play at 6:37 assisted by Arron Belton and Benji Crego. Andrew Crego scored at 3:43 assisted from Todd Redgrave and Marty Dettman. Andrew Crego scored again just 12 seconds later, assisted by Todd Redgrave. Benji Crego scored at 2:16 on a hard shot assisted by Marty Dettman and Todd Redgrave.

Todd Redgrave scored again with 10 seconds left in the game on a pretty passing play from Travis Willison and Benji Crego.

Everyone contributed 100 per cent in this contest. Terry King was especially sharp in goal, with one unbelievable save with Minden ahead 2-1, which might have cast a different complexion on the game at that juncture.

Minden completed the tenth game round robin playoff series with an impressive, 8 wins, 1 tie, 1 loss, record. Sixty-four goals for, and 30 against.

Loss to Manvers ends season for Pee Wees

by Lisa Bagshaw

On Monday, March 4, the Minden OMHA Pee Wees travelled to Manvers for the second-last game of the playoffs.

It was a seesaw game for the most part, but it was Manvers who came away the victors with a 3-0 win.

On the following Saturday, Manvers came to Minden to play the final playoff game.

Manvers opened the scoring at 7:32 and managed to slip another one by at 5:27 in the first. Minden's Dave Raback decided it was time to narrow the gap and sneaked one inside the bottom corner of the opponent's net on a pass from Scott Bacon at 1:49.

It wasn't until 1:25 of the second that Minden tied the score when Dave Raback received his second goal of the game on an assist from Aaron Tomlinson, making it 2-2 going into the third.

The third period saw some good checks being given and received, with both goalies receiving several shots on net. However, it was Manvers who broke the tie at 5:47 in the third to finish the game Manvers 3, Minden 2.

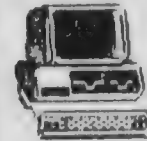

This game capped off the season for the Minden OMHA Pee Wees.

Bob Johnston, Leigh Bull, Mike Iles, Don Popple and Andy Salvatori

Tykes make it to division final against Haliburton

our boys' outstanding performance in this game.

Our second game was with Fenelon Falls. Mark Snell's great goaltending was a major factor in these playoff games. The final score in this game was Minden, 5 and Fenelon, 1. Our goals were as follows: Andy Kinsman, assisted by Jamie Collis; Stephen Johnson, assisted by Jamie Collis; Jamie Collis, assisted by Andy Kinsman; Andy Kinsman, unassisted; and Jamie Collis, unassisted.

With this win, our team was able to return on Sunday and play Bobcaygeon. The boys all seemed well rested and hungry for another victory. This was Adam Tomlinson's finest hour with a hat trick. Way to go Adam!

Two other goals were scored by Andy Kinsman and our final goal was by Jamie Collis. Again our entire team of Mark, Stephen, Adam, Ben, Nicholas, Andy, Jamie, Justin and Lance were all playing their hardest.

This now left one more game to try and win in order to be the North Division Tri-County Major Tyke Champions. What pressure! The team we would play was Haliburton again. Our spirits were high and we were eager to get on the ice. However, this game proved to be more than we could handle.

Haliburton took the lead early and by the middle of the second period we were down 4-0. Our only goal was scored by Andy Kinsman, assisted by Jamie Collis. The final score was 6-1 after a long, hard battle. Good try boys and congratulations to Haliburton on an outstanding performance.

Our Tyke team has been very fortunate to have three great volunteers this year. Our coach, Joe Mitchell, and his assistants, Kim Collis and Dave Brown, have worked hard with our boys. The important things they have taught them is team work and sportsmanship. The parents thank them very much and sure hope to see you on the ice again next year.

The three game winner in the annual Straw and Stone Bonspiel, held at the Minden Curling Club March 9 and 10, was the Bob Steven rink. Exhausted by the high calibre of play, Bob was unable to be on hand for the presentation; however, Shirley Collis, Al Mayo and Marie Leonard were there to accept the honour. The annual funspiel attracted 14 teams, most wearing costumes. The Neil Burk rink, all Indians, won the best costumes prize, while Val Loughheed's depiction of a cow took top individual honours.

District Health Council begins 12-month study

The Haliburton, Kawartha & Pine Ridge District Health Council is initiating a major overview of the community-based primary health care network. At the heart of the study is the development of a vision for the health of this four-county district which reflects the changing needs of the dozens of communities within the district. This plan will assist the District Health Council, and many other organizations, build a system of human services that enhanced the health and health status of the quarter million residents of this district. Many groups recognize that health promotion and disease prevention require a great deal more energy and resources in order to redirect the system from the treatment of illness to one which recognizes the multiple determinants of health.

Of particular concern to the District Health Council is that this district has proportionately more elderly individuals than any other planning district in the province, and that over half of this population live in relatively rural, isolated communities. Access to appropriate health/social/housing services is limited to these people. This planning issue is compounded by the emerging developments of large retirement communities in areas without access to appropriate health and social services.

Additionally, the District Health Council is aware of the growing number of people who are moving here and commuting for employment to the Toronto/Durham area. The ability to attract local health and social services is difficult and causing stress to this group of relatively young people. The District Health Council wants to continue to work closely with the municipal planning departments and others in exploring and monitoring these trends.

The District Health Council is an advisory body to the Ontario Minister of Health which was established in 1975. Current membership is Dr. David Swales (Chairman), Barb Moffat, Pat Sargent of Peterborough; Maureen Dikun, Campbellford; Carole Craig-myle, Haliburton; Marg Dawson, Indian River; Jane Walling, Paul Beaumont and Sister Kathleen Harrigan, Lindsay; Carol Gallo-way, Port Hope; Dale Ross, Bobcaygeon.

Cemetery helps bring famous people to life

by Joel Levis, Haliburton County Public Library.

When one thinks of a cemetery, one usually thinks of a narrow range of topics, not the most prominent being history—and usually fascinating history at that.

While Mount Pleasant Cemetery by Mike Filey is not your average tour book, it is an illustrated guide to the burial place of many of Canada's most famous people including Mackenzie King, the Eaton Family, Foster Hewitt and Glenn Gould to name but a few. It also includes a lot of not-so famous people as well. For example, the first Canadian soldier killed in World War I and those lost

It is expected that the study will begin in early March and take approximately twelve months to complete. The District Health Council will be working with health care in the Noronic disaster of 1949.

Along with a history of the Cemetery itself, there are references to over 200 "resting places" as well as notable and remarkable tombs, monuments and other items of interest.

This illustrated guide is in great demand and may be obtained through any branch of the Haliburton County Public Library.

Good snow conditions make a busy winter

As a child growing up in Oshawa, I and everyone took winter for granted. We always had a white Christmas, always built rinks in the backyard, had toboggan parties on the Oshawa Golf Course and said the last goodbyes to snow some time in early April.

Today, most people in Oshawa and Toronto don't even bother with snowtires. Snow, if it comes, doesn't stay and almost every month of winter season the ground is bare. Fortunately, the Highlands is approximately 1,000 feet above Lake Ontario and that difference equals 3 degrees Fahrenheit. It also makes all the difference in that we have had good snow conditions all winter. Our snow cover has made us one of the last bastions of that mythical Canadian winter that is easily accessible by the millions in the Toronto urban area.

Curtis Eastmure reports that the 200 km of cross-country trails have had good conditions for most of the winter and that there has been quite an interest in the lodge to lodge skiing program.

Reports from the H.C.-S.A. are that they also have had a very busy winter. The trails this winter have been kept groomed with a dedicated and hard working team of volunteers who worked their evenings and weekends to keep the trails in shape. The H.C.S.A. trail system remains one of the best and largest systems in Ontario for snowmobilers.

Haliburton Forest & Wildlife also reports a busy year for their snowmobile trails along with steady activity for trout fishing. The Clansman on Highway 35 says activity was about the same as last year. In the Big Fish category, the record to date has been an 8 lb. laker taken from one of the Clansman huts.

Finally, Chris Bishop at Sir Sam's says they have been pleased with the winter season. Kitchener's CKCO TV station recently did a documentary on Sir Sam's calling it "Ontario's best kept secret of winter with lots of lifts that keep waiting in line to a minimum and excellent snow making that guarantees good skiing from the start to finish of the season." On March 29, Sir Sam's is helping celebrate

Students prepare Rails' End exhibit

The art and craft world is continually developing new ideas and reviving "old" techniques to express views, attitudes and thoughts of contemporary society.

A primary example of this is the re-occurrence and popularity of the floorcloth which last enjoyed grand popularity in the last half of the 18th century. Painted canvases which are not stretched over frames, but rather lie flat with edges simply turned under and secured, are now being promoted as one of the latest trends in floor design. Ensuring a wide audience, canvases are painted with many design persuasions, ranging from abstract graphics to realistic representations.

Works included in "Contemporary Floorcloths" have been created by Susan Kee, JoAnne Brown and Odile Desgroseilliers. Ms. Kee and Ms. Brown share a studio and business and have both been instructors at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts, Haliburton, Ontario. Ms. Desgroseilliers is currently enjoying much publicity through her assertive plunge into the world of craft exhibitions such as Toronto's One-Of-A-Kind Craft show.

Masks

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School

senior art class is acting as "group curator" for a month-long spring exhibition at the Rails' End Gallery (Haliburton, Ontario). This project is included annually within the curriculum of the senior art class, representing a large proportion of each student's yearly grade. Under the supervision of Rails' End Gallery's Curator/Co-ordinator (Holly G. Hutchison), this project requires the students to become actively involved in all phases of the exhibition's preparation, from artist selection, to advertising, to poster design, from installation of the show to organizing and being present at the Opening Reception.

The themes for the 1991 project are masks and maskmaking. There will be a wide representation of approach and media presented, from papier mache to raku to leather, created by well-known Ontario artists such as Ankaret Dean, Paul Portelli and Jerrard Smith. Be sure to visit this exhibition, lending support to the students and to the Rails' End Gallery.

The Rails' End Gallery is located in the Village of Haliburton and is open to the public between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., Tuesday to Saturday. For additional information, please phone 705-457-2330.

What to look for when buying a new home.

As a builder, people always ask me, "How do I know my new home will be built to the highest standards?"

It's a good question. Because while all homes are built to building code standards, there is only one type of home that's been given a special designation because it exceeds the building code to make it more energy efficient. In fact, it's so energy efficient that Ontario Hydro highly recommends it.

It's called the R2000 home. Seen from the street it looks like any other home. So what makes it so special?

It's the way it's built. For example, R2000 homes are constructed with a greater attention to detail. This creates a more comfortable, even temperature in your home that also eliminates drafts and cold spots. And because of extra insulation and good quality doors and windows, R2000 homes reduce noise from neighbours and outside traffic.

Is clean, fresh air important to you and your family? The R2000 home lets you control the ventilation in your home. For example, you don't have to open the window for fresh air, the ventilation system will ensure a continuous supply at all times by exhausting the stale indoor air and replacing it with fresh outdoor air.

But there is one thing you must know. Builders must receive special training to build R2000 homes. And to ensure your home is built to official R2000 standards, it is individually inspected and given its own certificate. So look for the R2000 symbol, it's your way of knowing that the home you buy is a better built home.

For more information about R2000 homes, call the certified R2000 builder listed below.
